Dear Internet Visitors,

I warmly welcome you to the rejuvenated website of the Ministry of Health.

At this extremely critical time in our health development, at this exciting time when we have just adopted a new National Health Policy and a new National Health Strategic Plan and when other critical health plans, like the National Strategy for Non-Communicable Diseases and the Strategy for HIV and AIDS, are getting their own fresh look, it was important that we revamped our website and presented ourselves to the World in a new way.

This new website will be the main voice of the Ministry of Health. We will try to feel the pulse of the nation and seek to be as responsive and as relevant to its needs for health information as possible. We will use the website to keep you updated on what we do in the Ministry of Health, on the successes that we record and on the challenges that we continue to encounter, in order to provide you with the best health care system possible.

Health is not the business of the Ministry of Health alone. You must have heard this song a million times by now. But this is as true and as relevant today as it was when it was first said. We need all our partners to be fully engaged with us. Not just once but all the time! We want to involve all... individuals, families and communities in the planning, implementation and evaluation of everything that we do…. Nothing for you without you – this is our new modus operandi.

I warmly thank the team who has worked on our website and I wish you all a very enjoyable journey through it.

Minister

Larue
